

For the Best Deal on a NEW
Call 226-2000 Va Dlr

SPORTS

/ www.TimesDispatch.com /

Action on the way

Action sports are coming to Richmond this summer PAGE E2

Risk management

Know limitations and kayak safety before heading out on the water PAGE E3

Coach: 'one-time situation'

Maryland's Williams says he feels responsible for player's suspension

BY DAVID GINSBURG
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland basketball coach Gary Williams yesterday accepted responsibility for allowing leading scorer Chris McCray to become academically ineligible, but expressed hope that the senior — and the 18th-ranked Terrapins — could cope with the adversity created by the "one-time situation."

The school announced Monday that McCray would miss the rest of the season for failing to adhere to NCAA academic standards. The suspension begins today, when Maryland faces Georgia Tech on the road.

"This is the first time in 28 years as a head coach I've lost a player halfway through the season," Williams said. "It's something that I personally take responsibility for. I feel bad about it. My job now is to make sure that Chris does a good job in school this semester and is successful with whatever he wants to do after school is out."

McCray was averaging 15.2 points per game in his second year as the Terrapins' co-captain. Williams said his staff was aware that McCray was struggling in school, but couldn't do enough to keep him eligible.

"No one feels worse than Chris about this situation, but you beat yourself up as a coach thinking there's some way this can be avoided, because I'm not used to this," Williams said. "It's something we certainly will continue to look at, and see if there are ways we can improve what we do."

Williams always meets the media on the day before a game, and in most cases only a handful of reporters show up. Yesterday, a half-dozen cameras and a room

SEE TERPS, PAGE E4 ▶

Super Mario

■ Won six NHL scoring titles, three MVPs and two

Strike

— FROM PAGE E1

Shrader Lanes house, is about 6 miles away. "Location, location, location," Clark said.

Bowl America operates 18 other venues, all on the East Coast. Twelve are located in Virginia, three in Richmond. Clark said the firm is "always looking" for new markets for expansion. Looking, yes, but not recklessly searching. "If we're not convinced that we can succeed, then we're not going to go there. It's that simple."

This is the extent to which the firm is convinced about the Short Pump house: The assessed value of the 4.18-acre parcel of land is $1.8 million. The assessed value of the building's shell is $1.5 million. And according to the firm's most recent quarterly report, nearly $5 million in contracts "relating to the construction and equipping" of the facility had been issued by October, 2005.

Still, some question the timing, if not the prudence, of the investment. The United States Bowling Congress measures conscientious participation in the sport by tracking membership in organizations such as the American Bowling Congress and the Young American Bowling Alliance. USBC statistics show a significant decline over the past nine years. Youth and adult memberships combined have slipped from nearly 4.5 million in July, 1997, to just under 2.9 million last summer. The number of bowling centers, too, has fallen: from 6,986 in 1997 to 5,740 last summer.

A recent Tuesday night visit to King Pin Lanes, a house on the western outskirts of Midlothian, seemed to verify those numbers. One bowler, Michael Griebe, said his league has lost four teams within the past year.

Another, William Smiley, said "things do seem to be dropping off a little bit." Smiley offered his league as evidence. "We haven't been able to put a full league" — 10 teams, in this case — "together for a couple of years now."

But while league traffic appears at best stagnant, open bowling — think birthday parties, first dates and Friday night entertainment for a family of four — seems to be thriving. King Pin can point to a 70 percent increase in open play since Jan. 1 of last year.

Insiders say this development might not be as encouraging as it appears. League play requires a substantial investment of time and money. Some leagues offer 34-week schedules. Summer leagues typically offer eight- to 12-week schedules. Open play requires little commitment and carries no guarantee of a return visit.

Said Griebe: "If you're going to run a bowling house, you have to have leagues to make money. Period. There's no getting around it."

Clark said the Short Pump house will respond to this trend by embracing the sport's birthday-party, gaggle-of-friends, family-fun constituency. Amenities at the new facility include five party/meeting rooms, a cutting-edge

ALEXA WELCH EDLUND/TIMES-DISPATCH

Rick Davis (left), Bowl America superintendent, General Manager Irv Clark (center) and Fred Kunkel, a superintendent with Emerald Construction Company, look over plans for Bowl America-Short Pump, which will open Friday.

The local lineup

Bowl America's Short Pump facility, scheduled to open on Friday, is the first new bowling center built in the metro area in 10 years. The local lineup now includes 15 houses, 14 tenpins and one duckpins:

Facility	Lanes	Address	Phone
AMF Hanover Lanes	56	7317 Bell Creek Road, Mechanicsville	559-2600
AMF Shrader Lanes	50	8037 Shrader Road, Richmond	747-9620
AMF Sunset Lanes	32	6540 W. Broad Street, Richmond	282-0537
AMF Walnut Hill Lanes	32	2147 S. Crater Road, Petersburg	732-5321
Bowl America-Eastern	36	5018 Williamsburg Road, Richmond	222-5183
Bowl America-Midlothian	52	7929 Midlothian Turnpike, Richmond	320-7115
Bowl America-Short Pump	40	4400 Pouncey Tract Road, Glen Allen	360-8222
Bowl America-Southwest	40	11532 Hull Street Road, Midlothian	744-1500
Fort Lee Bowling Center	24	1100 Lee Ave., Suite 119, Fort Lee	734-6860
Holiday Bowl	24	11400 Jefferson Davis Highway, Chesterfield	748-5635
Hopewell Bowling Center	12	115 South 15th Ave., Hopewell	458-2181
King Pin Lanes	32	200 N. Otterdale Road, Midlothian	378-7838
Oaklawn Bowl	16	4300 Oaklawn Blvd., Hopewell	458-5913
Plaza Bowl (duckpins)	24	523 E. Southside Plaza, Richmond	233-8799
The Bowling Alley	16	2300 Boulevard, Colonial Heights	526-3862

game room, wireless Internet access, a light-and-sound system that can create a disco-like environment and a kitchen that offers catering as well as conventional service.

"Don't misunderstand," Clark said. "We're still going to be a bowling center. We're never going to move away from the fact that what we do, first and foremost, is cater to bowlers."

But given the changes apparent in the public's participation patterns, he said, "we realized that we had to be able to do parties, too."

Local bowlers seem intrigued by the new house, if not blindly enthusiastic about it. Jay Linari, a twice-a-week competitor in leagues at Shrader and Sunset, said Bowl America has chosen "a prime location. They ought to do really, really well out there."

But he expressed a concern: "I can't help wondering if they'll pull people" from near-West End facilities such as Shrader and Sunset "and maybe shut down a lot of the stuff that's already going on here."

Clark promised a clean, airy, comfortable venue with the latest

ALEXA WELCH EDLUND/TIMES-DISPATCH

Cheryl Clatterbaugh organizes the rental shoes at Bowl America-Short Pump, the area's newest tenpins facility, which is scheduled to open Friday.

equipment, diversions aplenty and an attentive staff. "It's the kind of place where people will want to go," he said.

Yet to be answered, however, is this question: Where people want to go, will leagues want to follow?

• Contact staff writer Vic Dorr Jr. at vdorr@timesdispatch.com or (804) 649-6442

Adkins Lighting Center
Midlothian 272-7503

RICHMOND SPIDER